

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased from 10.5 million to 13.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased from 4.5 million to 6.5 million (Office for National Statistics, 2002).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people, and the need to ensure that the health care system is able to meet the needs of this population. The Department of Health (2001) has set out a strategy for the health care system, which includes a commitment to improve the health and well-being of older people. This strategy is based on the following principles:

- To ensure that older people have access to the health care services that they need.
- To ensure that the health care system is able to meet the needs of older people.
- To ensure that older people are able to live independently and actively.

The Department of Health (2001) has also set out a number of key objectives for the health care system, which include:

- To reduce the health inequalities between different groups of people.
- To improve the quality of health care services.
- To ensure that the health care system is able to meet the needs of older people.

The Department of Health (2001) has also set out a number of key actions for the health care system, which include:

- To ensure that older people have access to the health care services that they need.
- To ensure that the health care system is able to meet the needs of older people.
- To ensure that older people are able to live independently and actively.

The Department of Health (2001) has also set out a number of key outcomes for the health care system, which include:

- To reduce the health inequalities between different groups of people.
- To improve the quality of health care services.
- To ensure that the health care system is able to meet the needs of older people.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased from 10.5 million to 13.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased from 4.5 million to 6.5 million (Office for National Statistics, 2002).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people, and the need to ensure that the health care system is able to meet the needs of older people. The Department of Health (2001) has published a strategy for older people, which sets out the government's commitment to older people and the need to ensure that the health care system is able to meet the needs of older people.

The strategy for older people (Department of Health, 2001) sets out the government's commitment to older people and the need to ensure that the health care system is able to meet the needs of older people. The strategy is based on the following principles:

- Older people should be able to live independently and actively in their own homes.
- Older people should be able to access the health care services they need.
- Older people should be able to participate in decisions about their care.
- Older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment.

The strategy for older people (Department of Health, 2001) sets out the government's commitment to older people and the need to ensure that the health care system is able to meet the needs of older people. The strategy is based on the following principles:

- Older people should be able to live independently and actively in their own homes.
- Older people should be able to access the health care services they need.
- Older people should be able to participate in decisions about their care.
- Older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment.

The strategy for older people (Department of Health, 2001) sets out the government's commitment to older people and the need to ensure that the health care system is able to meet the needs of older people. The strategy is based on the following principles:

- Older people should be able to live independently and actively in their own homes.
- Older people should be able to access the health care services they need.
- Older people should be able to participate in decisions about their care.
- Older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment.